3 TEACHERS ARE CHOSEN

COLLEGE REGENTS GRANT FIVE ABSENCE LEAVES.

A FRATERNITY RULING

Organizations May Now Be Formed at Institution—Two New Departmental Chairmen Chosen.

The employment of three new faculty members, the granting of a leave of absence to five others, appointment of two new departmental chairmen, and the establishment of a ruling permitting fraternities and sororities at the State Teachers College marked the annual meeting of the regents of that institution yesterday at the College.

Five members of the board attended the meeting yesterday. They were: Miss Laura Schmitz, Chillicothe; Bert Voorhees, St. Joseph; George J. Stevenson, Tarkio; True D. Parr, Hamilton; and W. F. Phares, Maryville. Homer Feurt of Gallatin was unable to attend the meeting, as was Charles A. Lee, state superintendent of schools. Mr. Stevenson returned to Tarkio early in the afternoon.

Five Leaves Granted.

Leaves of absence were granted by the regents to five faculty members of the College for one year.

Miss Dora B. Smith, elementary supervisor, will go to the teachers college of Columbia University, New York, where she will take her master's degree in education. Miss Chloe Millikan, primary supervisor at the Franklin school, will also take a master's degree at Columbia University. Miss Smith has been with the College for four and a half years, and Miss Millikan for one year.

Merle E. Seleeman, who has been director of information at the College for three years, will go to school next year. He will either attend the Pulitzer School at Columbia University or the Medill School at Northwestern. Both of these schools are in journalism.

Miss Laveta McClanahan, instructor in dramatics, was granted leave to take her master's at Northwestern. She will major in speech and will also take private work in expression under Ella Wilson Smith. Miss McClanahan has been at the College for two years, coming here after being graduated from Drake University, Des Moines.

J. W. Hake, instructor of physics, was granted a six-weeks leave to do work on his doctor's degree at the University of Iowa. He is now at Iowa City.

Three New Teachers.

Three new faculty members were employed by the board for next year. Mrs. Carrie Margaret Caldwell will teach the Dunning System of children's work in the Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Caldwell is a graduate of the College and holds a Bachelor of Music degree from Northwestern.

Miss Lucile Brumbaugh will be assistant librarian at the College. She is a graduate of the institution and has just completed work in the library school at the University of Illinois.

Miss Elizabeth White was employed as an instructor in rural education. Miss White is a graduate of the Warrensburg State Teachers College and holds a master's degree from the University of Missouri. She is a former county superintendent of schools of Vernon County and a rural school supervisor for the Missouri department of education.

Homer T. Phillips was appointed by the board as chairman of the education department of the College. He succeeds Fred Keller in the position. L. M. Eek was also appointed as chairman of the commerce department, succeeding C. W. Rogers, who has resigned from the faculty to go into business.

May Have Fraternities.

Fraternities and sororities will be permitted at the College by virtue of a regulation adopted by the board yesterday. An old regulation barring social fraternal organizations was rescinded by the regents.

Following is the new ruling:

"The President, with the advice of the Faculty Council, shall have authority to make any regulations necessary for the government and control of student organization of the College. Authority is also given to establish standards for rooming houses, (considering such matters as sanitation, number of persons to a room, bath, and toilet facilities, room furnishings

DEATH TAKES CHAS. STOCKING

WAS M. E. CHURCH PASTOR HERE IN 1869.

WROTE TO ALDERMAN

When Dedicatory Exercises Were Held Here in 1925, Letter From Former Minister Was Read.

Chicago, June 19.—The Rev. Charles H. Stocking, 84, retired Methodist Episcopal minister of Baltimore, who held pastorates in Cleveland and in other Ohio and Iowa parishes, died suddenly at a hotel here yesterday while resting between trains. He was with his son, Dr. L. C. Stocking, of St. Louis, and was bound for Duluth to visit another son.

The Rev. Charles Stocking was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Maryville in 1869. He preached his first sermon here on January 22, 1869. He wrote as follows about those early times:

"The membership, as I remember, numbered forty-one. The Sunday school numbered some thirty during the month of February and until conference in March, when a gracious revival, resulting in the addition of about thirty-five, was made to the society. At this conference, held at Chillicothe, Bishop E. E. Janes presiding, Maryville was made a station, and I was returned to it, and it was my first regular appointment. Rev. L. V. Morton was appointe dto the circuit. At once we counseled together as to how the debt of $6,500 could be raised. The circuit still felt a great interest in the church at the county seat, and grandly offered to stand with us in our effort to save the property, which was threatened with sale. During that year we raised and paid $4,500, leaving $2,000."

The Rev. Mr. Stocking was succeeded here by J. S. Barwick in 1870.

Judge I. K. Alderman has corresponded with the Rev. Mr. Stocking for several years and just recently received a letter from Mr. Stocking. During the dedication of the First M. E. Church building here Sept. 20, 1925, after it was remodeled, Dr. C. C. James, the present pastor, read a letter from the Rev. Mr. Stocking about some of the early experiences of the church here.

The Rev. Mr. Stocking was a soldier in the Civil War and though a superannuate in the ministry, was active in the G. A. R., having served as Chaplain-in-Chief.

Girard, Kan., June 19.—Mrs. Georgia Brown was in jail here today while the sheriff's office was investigating the fatal shooting last night of her sixth husband.

Mrs. Brown declared today that her sixth mate k illed himself while in a drunken sleep.

CITY CARRIER WILL RETIRE

JOSEPH UPDEGRAFF TO QUIT ON JULY 31.

HE TOOK FIRST EXAM

Will Have Been In Service Twenty Years, Six Months And Five Days.

After twenty years, six months and five days of service as a city mail carrier, Joseph C. Updegraff will retire on July 31, it was announced at the postoffice this morning.

Although Mr. Updegraff reached his sixty-fifth birthday, the age for retirement, January 31 of this year, he was given an extension of six months.

He was first appointed a substitute carrier by John G. Grems, October 30, 1900. In those days, Mr. Grems said this morning, the postmaster would appoint the carriers and other employes at the postoffice. On November 8, 1905, Mr. Updegraff was appointed a regular carrier. He took the first civil service examination for carriers ever given at the Maryville postoffice. Arthur Andrews, Carl Wray and John Warren also took this examination and these were the first city carriers here, and Mr. Updegraff was selected as a substitute.

Mr. Updegraff has been a carrier on Route 3, in the north and west parts of town, for many years. He is the first city carrier to be retired under the present law. Lafe Stamper was retired as a rural carrier on November 1 of last year.

Local Priests to Chicago Tomorrow

Fathers Niemann and Felix to Attend Eucharistic Congress.—Latter Gone for Summer.

The pastors of both Maryville Catholic Churches will leave tomorrow for Chicago to attend the twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress, the greatest gathering of Catholics ever held in the United States.

The Rev. Henry F. Niemann, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, will make his headquarters while in Chicago at St. Ignatius College, with Father Lyons, a brother of Sister Frances of St. Francis Hospital here.

Both Father Niemann and Father Richard Felix, pastor of St. Mary's Church, will leave Maryville tomorrow afternoon. Father Niemann will return to Maryville about July 1. Others from Maryville who will attend the congress are Mrs. Vincent Quinn, Misses Bertha, Minnie, and Irene Tobin, and John Murphy.

From Chicago, Father Felix will leave for Glen Riddle, Pa., where he will teach in a Sisters' summer school which is under the supervision of Villa Nova University. Glen Riddle is just outside Philadelphia, and the school has some 700 sisters enrolled in college work. Father Felix will teach courses in methods in secondary education, educational psychology and ethics. He taught last summer in Villa Nova.

Father Felix will return here in the fall to resume his pastorate of St. Mary's. During his absence, Father Norbert from the Abbey at Conception has been assigned here.

One Stolen Car Left Where Another Was

Thieves Take New Ford Of Howard Masters, Leave Car Stolen From Joe Auer.

Howard Masters, living southwest of Maryville, reported to the authorities his Ford touring car was stolen last night from Normal avenue. The car was parked there while Masters was visiting friends.

Masters had had the car only about six weeks, it being a new one. The engine number was 13507136 and the license number was 167-840.

The car of Joe Auer of Maryville, which had been taken previously was found near where the Masters car was parked and it is presumed the party or parties left the Auer car near that place and then took the Masters car.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Donahue received word yesterday morning of the birth of a daughter in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woods of Walla Walla, Wash. The baby was born June 6. Mrs. Woods was formerly Miss Nona Donahue.

Cold? Yes, But Not So Cold as It Was Only Two Years Ago

Although the thermometer sank last night to 47 degrees, it set no record for June frigidity, according to J. R. Brink, official weather observer for Maryville.

Glancing back over his records, Mr. Brink discovered that on June 1, 1924, the temperature declined to 41 degrees. He also found two occasions later in the month when the minimum thermometer reading was 42.

Maryville Linemen Aid Stricken Places

Electric light transmission lines in the vicinity of Clarinda are repaired today as a result of "first aid" offered by Maryville Electric Light and Power Co., linemen who volunteered their services following the cyclone Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Murray, jr., of Grant City spent last evening with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Aley.

TO CALL W. C. T. U. WORKERS

SENATE COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE FUND RAISED.

$250,000 IS INVOLVED

Subpoenas Ordered For Officials Of Dry Organization—Hearings To Be Resumed Monday.

Washington, June 19.—The Senate slush fund committee decided today to investigate the expenditure of a $250,000 fund raised by the W. C. T. U. of Pennsylvania for "law enforcement" purposes just prior to the two-million-dollar Senatorial campaign.

The fund was turned over either to Governor Gifford Pinchot or his representatives, the committee was told, and a detailed account of its expenditures was never rendered by members of the W. C. T. U.

The committee decided on an inquiry into the fund to learn whether it was used on behalf of the Senatorial candidacy of Governor Pinchot. The committee ordered a subpoena for Mrs. Ella George of Pittsburgh, president of the W. C. T. U. of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Maud T. Seymour of McConnellsburg, Pa., a vice-president at large was previously summoned.

The committee called off the session scheduled for today and Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, announced the hearings will be resumed Monday. At that time, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, will resume the stand, Reed said. The postponement was due, according to Reed, to the fact that Wheeler could not produce the financial records of his organization until Monday and other members of the committee were engaged in legislative action.

Complete Plans for Collectors Meeting

Springfield, Mo., June 19.—Final plans were completed today for the annual state convention of Missouri county collectors association to be held here Monday and Tuesday. Representatives from the majority of counties in the state are expected to attend the convention.

R. G. Franks, St. Joseph, Is Fined $5 and Costs—Burlington Junction Garage Man the Other.

R. G. Franks, who travels for a tobacco house of St. Joseph, was arrested last night on a charge of having no license plates on his car. He entered a plea of guilty this morning before Judge W. L. Johnson, justice of peace, and was fined $5. Franks was arrested by Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell.

Another arrest for failure to have license plates was made by U. S. Reavis, deputy sheriff at Burlington Junction when he picked up J. M. Shores, the garage man at that town. Shores is charged with using the same license plates on two cars. Shores was brought to Maryville this morning and it is understood he will enter a plea of guilty to the charge before a justice of peace at Burlington Junction.

James Newberry Hurt When Struck by Auto

Boy Jumps Out in Front of Thomas Clark Car on Second Hill This Side of Ravenwood.

James H. Newberry, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Newberry, living near Ravenwood, is in the St. Francis Hospital today suffering from injuries sustained yesterday when he was struck by the car owned and driven by Thomas Clark, Maryville theatre owner.

Mr. Clark was coming down the second hill this side of Ravenwood about 3:15 o'clock. Young Newberry, with his brother, was standing on the running board of the Newberry car. The brother ran across the road and Mr. Clark almost stopped his car to let the boy across. Then, when he had released his brake and was almost opposite the Newberry car, James jumped out in front of the Clark car and it was impossible to avert the accident.

The boy was struck by the car, which passed over his body, although none of the wheels touched him. He is reported better today.

Miss Gladys Allison will leave tomorrow for a visit at Denver, Colo.

To Seek Continuance of Bankers' Hearings

Because of Illness of Attorneys, Defense Will Ask Postponement of Sanford and Ferguson Trials.

Springfield, Mo., June 19.—Because of the illness of attorneys, the defense will ask for a continuance when the cases against E. L. Sanford, President of the defunct Holland banking company, and Ernest N. Ferguson, chairman of the board of directors, are called Monday, it was learned today.

The cases were transferred to Marshfield on a change of venue plea. Attorney Henry Lay of Warsaw, attorney for Sandford, has been ill for several days, while Judge Alfred A. Page, chief of counsel, has been seriously ill, confined at a local hospital for three weeks.

PREPARE FOR RECORD VOTE

POLICE AND REICHSWEHR ON AN EMERGENCY FOOTING.

REVOLUTIONARY IDEA

Germans To Decide On Final Disposition Of Property of Former Royalty Outcome Is Uncertain.

Berlin, June 19.—Police and the Reichswehr throughout Germany will go on an emergency footing at noon today when factories, shops and offices close and approximately forty million voters enter the last heat of the bitterest political campaign since the revolution.

This campaign will culminate tomorrow in the nation-wide balloting to decide whether or not the former German royalty shall be deprived of their estates. Not even the most ardent advocate of this revolutionary after-thought, which is now placed before the nation some eight years after the revolution, ventures to predict that the necessary twenty million will vote yes.

It is generally admitted, however, that in the present turmoil anything is possible, including a sensational upset of all predictions. It is generally conceded that the outcome lies in the hands of the eight million voters who failed to vote during the last presidential election. What these ballots will do is what is troubling all minds today. It is also the fact that the millions who, last year, cast their votes for President Von Hindenburg, hoping that he would work miracles and bring back better times, are bitterly disappointed and will cast a vote of vengeance tomorrow.

Time For Voting on Farm Bill Delayed

Senator Willis Blocks Attempt To Limit Debate Until Waterways Bill Is Out of Committee.

Washington, June 19.—Objection by Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, today prevented the Senate from setting a definite time to vote on the Haugen farm relief bill.

Senators Swanson of Virginia and Harrison of Missippi intimated that Willis' objection smacked of an incipient fillibuster against the farm bill which was in truth directed against the rivers and harbors bill, coming next on the calendar before adjournment.

Willis said he would object to all attempts to limit debate until the waterways bill was out of committee.

Senator McNary of Oregon, in charge of the farm bill, asked unanimous consent for a vote on Monday at 4 p. m., upon the Haugen price stabilization amendment.

Washington, June 19.—The Senate began voting this afternoon on farm relief legislation. The initial ballots were on amendments to the Dawes-McNary-Haugen bill, which has been introduced by the farm bloc as an amendment to the administration measure for a bureau of co-operative marketing in the Department of Agriculture.

On the first vote, the Senate, 42 to 32, struck naval stores from the list of commodities covered in the McNary bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garrett of Clearmont left yesterday for a two weeks' visit in Chicago.

In Pittsburgh, a fireman got a medal for saving five kittens, but now some dog is liable to bite him.

SITUATION IS NOW DIFFICULT

COOLIDGE AND KELLOGG CONSIDER TACNA-ARICA.

NEED MAXIMUM TACT

Good Will Toward U. S. of Two Countries Hinges on Action of Government in Matter.

Washington, June 19.—The task of salvaging the remaining prestige of the United States in South America faced President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg today as consideration was given to the next move in the Tacna-Arica dispute.

Withdrawal by President Coolidge as arbiter of the territorial dispute would pave the way for Peru to take the problem to the League of Nations or to appeal to other South American representatives, a step which the Washington government has exerted every effort to prevent.

Among the possibilities was a demand by Peru that President Coolidge as arbiter, award the disputed province to her because Chile has frustrated the plebiscite by intimidation and violence. This Peru would have a perfect right to do under the award, in the opinion of many officials. To acede to such a demand in the face of the hostile feeling shown in Chile would admittedly bring the wrath of Chile upon the United States. Even with General Lassiter, head of the plebiscite commission sailing for home tomorrow and Chile having rejected the settlement by negotiations, there remained before the arbiter the question of fixing boundaries.

Hodges Back at His Job With N. Y. Bank

Grateful To All His Friends And To Judge Allen Who Gave Him Another Chance, He Says.

New York, June 19.—Determined to redeem himself, Alexander R. Hodges, Jr., of Kansas City, former University of Kansas football star, is back today at his job in a downtown bank.

Hodges, who, last April, held up a restaurant with a toy pistol on an impulse because he was broke, received a suspended sentence yesterday from Judge William Allen, who said he believed Hodges was an accidental offender without criminal tendencies.

"I am grateful to all my friends," Hodges said, "who did what they could for me and stood by me in trouble. I am grateful to Judge Allen for giving me another chance and I am going to make good."

Pouring Into Chicago for Catholic Meeting

Archbishop of Philadelphia Steps From Private Car Into Welcoming Arms of Huge Delegation.

Chicago, June 19.—Dignitaries from the Roman Catholic Church, pilgrims from a dozen climes, as well as distinguished laymen from many sections of the world literally poured into Chicago today.

Chief among the arriving churchmen was Dennis Cardinal Daugherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, who stepped from his private car at the union station into the arms of thousands there to bid him welcome.

The laymen included His Excellency Louis Borno, president of Haiti, accompanied by Mrs. Borno, Dr. W. Cumberland, American high commissioner to Haiti, and seven other dignitaries of the island republic.

We are requested to announce that there will be a grand old-fashioned barbecue held two miles south of Defiance on the Fourth of July. Good speakers will be present and all who wish to spend the Fourth pleasantly are cordially invited to attend.

J. V. Gallion announces by a local notice in this issue that he will open a boot and shoe shop in a few days one door west of Dr. McCluskey's office.

As will be seen by a local notice in another column, the firm of Yehle & Co., has dissolved and that the business will be conducted as heretofore at the old stand by Lambert Yehle & Co. The new firm will always keep on hand the choicest of meats and all who want something strictly first class at lowest living rates should give them a call.

Some Indians passed through town last Sunday. They were going to Wisconsin where they reside. They passed through here last spring going south and now they are returning home.

Al Ellis will accept our thanks for the present of a patent extinguisher which he attached to one of our lamps the other day. This burner is a decided improvement upon the burners in general use. The light is extinguished by means of a little spring attached to the burner. Should the lamp be turned over or happen to fall in any way, the spring is operated in such a manner by a little ball connected with it as to put out the light. This makes the lamp very safe. Al has all sizes of these new burners in his drug store.

The McMackin mills at Graham is again in running order and turning out is usual fine quality of flour.

By special notice addressed to the Grangers of Nodaway County, which appears elsewhere in this issue, it will be seen that T. R. Allen, Master of the state Grange, will speak at Union Hall, in Maryville, on Friday, June 30, at 1 o'clock p. m., with closed doors and at the Shell Grove on Saturday at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. A basket dinner will be given at the latter place, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

A special session of the county court was held last Monday. The principal business transacted was to extend the state and county taxes on the K. C., St. Joe and C. B. R. R., as equalized by the state board of equalization.

Hon. M. G. Roseberry and W. L. McCoy, as a committee visited St. Joe last week and had a conference with Superintendent Barnard relative to the unjust freight and poor accommodations offered Maryville by the Maryville branch of the K. C., St. Joe & C. B. R. R. Mr. Barnard stated in substance to our committee that there was no probability that the passenger train would be put back on the road, but said that he would try and have better connections made. He gave as a reason for the withdrawal of the express, that it did not pay, and as to exorbitant freights, he would look into the matter and report at some near date in the future.

Dr. Manning of Quitman returned to Maryville last Friday morning after an absence of a month in Pennsylvania and at the Centennial. The Doctor says it was decidedly a big thing, and his advice is that every person who can spare the time and money should go and see it. The expense, he says, is not so great as it is often represented. A person can live in almost first class style for a little less than $4 per day. The doctor was there eight days and says he does not regret the expense of the round trip at all, but feels that he was amply repaid by what he saw there.

A lovely gown with hat, gloves and purse to match may be ruined if the shoes are not correct. The shoes make or mar the outfit. Style leaders agree on that. The Bee Hive Shoe Store specializes in the correct thing in footwear and offers to help you solve the problem of what to wear on your feet this summer. Hose, too, in all the wanted shades may be had there. Go to this store if you are having trouble getting the proper fit. The company specializes in fitting narrow feet, too.

There are meats and meats and it is a wise cook that knows how to choose according to the season to tempt the appetites of her family. Some men simply won't be appeased with anything else except a big juicy steak from Burton's every day out of the year. But the other members of the family enjoy the meats chosen according to the thermometer. This is the season for chops. Burton's offer the best that can be had in seasonal meats.

Picnic time is here for sure. Whether the day is cool or whether it is hot, a picnic is always the most desirable thing for summer entertainment. Half of the fun of a picnic is in having the proper equipment. For your special benefit Townsend's have arranged a display of "everything for the picnic," they have a complete assortment—paper dishes, napkins, and the accessories to say nothing of the very best foods that can be had for less. Townsend's is to Maryville what Wolferman's is to Kansas City and Kansas City would be lucky to have a fine place like Townsend's to trade in.

And by the way, don't forget that Yehle's are serving a delicious dinner every evening at their store. Luncheon also may be had there, you know. This is a boon to the shopper—the food is excellent, inexpensive and above all handy. Just stop there while you're shopping. The fountain service there is excellent, too.

It's a treat for sure—a cooling drink, a dainty sandwich—a delectable ice or sherbet or maybe a good old ice cream soda—whatever it is, it will be more appetizing if taken at Lewis', Maryville's "place to drink," under the cooling breeze of electric fans and in a tastefully decorated shop.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Observe ice President Charles G. Dawes, coming out of his office in the Capitol building, in the midst of a group of farm relief agitators.

These times Dawes is everlastingly to be seen going into or coming out of his office in the midst of a group of farm relief agitators or else he isn't to be seen at all, because he's inside his office in conference with a group of them.

Farm relief is in the atmosphere and Charles G. Dawes breathes atmosphere. He doesn't quarrel with it. He inhales it deeply.

This would be all very well but—Farm relief atmosphere is poison gas to Calvin Coolidge. He's on record as opposed to farm relief legislation. He says the farmers must work out their own salvation.

Since the Iowa senatorial primaries he may wish he hadn't said it quite so emphatically. If so, that's all the more reason for him to wish his own vice president wouldn't associate so constantly and ostentatiously with farm reliefers, sympathizing with them in their plans and advising them to go ahead with same.

What the president may wish, however, doesn't seem to concern the vice president.

Dawes is well aware that farm relief atmosphere is surcharged with presidential lightening.

It will be noticed that he has a lightning rod up.

The 1925 total was 1250,000 and with the ever increasing number of automobile tourists, this total is expected to be increased by at least another 25,000.

The Missouri Association for Economy in government is receiving much favorable comment from the newspapers of Missouri on the work already done.

A reformer asks "Do you know what the primary trouble with this country is?" With a recent primary in mind, most people will guess that it is too much money.

Missouri district road bonds have been held constitutional by the state supreme court in a recent decision. There are about a million dollars worth of these bonds outstanding.

J. F. DOWDEN 68 TOMORROW

MYRTLE TREE FARMER TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY.

50 TO BE AT DINNER

And All Will Be Members of Family of Former Sheriff, Who Came Here 26 Years Ago.

With fifty members of his immediate family gathered about a dinner table, John F. Dowden, prominent farmer of the Myrtle Tree vicinity and former sheriff, will celebrate his sixty-eighth birthday tomorrow.

Mr. Dowden was born in Boone County, Iowa, on June 20, 1858. He moved to Nodaway County twenty-six years ago this fall. During all that time he has been a farmer, and one of those who have been able to make it pay. His farm is well kept and is one of the show places of the county.

It was from 1916 to 1920 that Mr. Dowden served as sheriff. He also has been a member of the Polk township board.

Two sisters of Mr. Dowden arrived yesterday to be present at the dinner. Mrs. Ruth Fair came from Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Charles Kreager from Newton, Ia. A brother, J. A. Dowden, of Lake Preston, S. D., is the only other member of the family. He was unable to come here, but later in the summer, Mr. Dowden and his two sisters probably will go to Lake Preston.

Included in the gathering tomorrow will be the five sons and one daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dowden. The sons are A. B., J. A., J. R., F. H., and Clarence Dowden, all of whom live in the vicinity of Maryville. The one daughter is Mrs. Harry Morris of St. Joseph.

There are twenty-two grandchildren, and two of the grandsons are married and have set up homes of their own. They are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dowden of St. Joseph and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dowden of Maryville.

The only guests tomorrow outside of the immediate Dowden family will be Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carden of Quitman, foster parents of Mr. Morris.

MOTOR BUS IS NEW PROBLEM

COMMERCE COMMISSION STUDIES REGULATION.

INQUIRY NEXT MONTH

Western Part of Country To Be Chief Section Studied—Railroads Fail To Learn Lesson.

Washington, June 19.—With Congress preparing to adjourn without passage of legislation for control of the nation's thousands of motor busses, the interstate commerce commission has organized to meet the problem of regulation squarely by next session.

The railroads and the state commissions have been asked to co-operate by answering a detailed questionnaire before September 1, so that it may be made a part of the record upon which the commission hopes to frame its recommendations to congress.

The mushroom growth of motor bus and truck traffic throughout the country has given authorities little or no opportunity to catch up with the problem of adjusting motorized equipment to the nation's transportation problems. The railroads for the most part have been groping in the dark while the state authorities have confessed their inability to regulate the traffic without authority in interstate commerce. This authority congress refuses to give.

Commissioner Esch, former member of the House who fathered the transportation act, is in charge of the commission bus inquiry which will open July 27 at Chicago and conclude in Washington the end of September.

The fact that only three eastern cities and one in the South out of thirteen to be visited are included in the itinerary leads to the belief that the commission is anxious to find out who the railroads are meeting but competion in the West. It was charged at the western rate replacing nonpaying branch lines with this cheaper form of transportation.

The investigation therefore, will give special attention to the following points:

1. The extent to which the auto bus has replaced rail facilities, and the possibility of extending the bus to nonpaying lines.

2. The effect of competition between bus and rail lines where busses are operated as subsidiaries or as independent carriers.

3. Determination as near as possible of the number of busses and trucks in the United States subject to state regulations or operated by the railroads and subject to regulation by the interstate commerce commission.

4. Advantages or disadvantages developed through experience in bus and truck service and revenue derived.

Shippers will have an opportunity at the various hearings to tell how much advantage bus and truck services have been to them. The interstate bus and truck operators will likewise have an opportunity to explain the peculiar nature of their services where they are not free from regulation. This is especially the case with truck operations classed as contract carriers charging rates in accordance with the nature of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Horton, J. B. Newberry and Newt Long, all of Ravenwood, were business visitors in Maryville today.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Medsker and son, Paul, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Beggs of Guilford were visitors in Maryville today. Mr. Medsker reports corn is looking fine in that community.

Morg Kling, east of Barnard, is feeding forty-eight head of coming 2 year-old steers and has over 100 head of 200-pound hogs in the feed lots. He expects to put more weight on them before sending to the market.

W. T. Throckmorton, northwest of Guilford, and Key Farman, northeast of that town, had a load of hogs on the St. Joseph market this week. Mr. Throckmorton's hogs averaged 267 pounds and Mr. Farnan's 248 pounds. They were as even a load as you will ever see shipped in one car and the boys received right at the top for that day's market.

Pat Gorman and sons, northeast of Maryville, had a fine bunch of steers on the St. Joseph market this week. They were loaded at Pickering. Mr. Gorman says they made a good gain while in the feedlot but did not command the price that should be received for those kind of cattle.

W. T. Jackson, ex-county judge, living northwest of Ravenwood, says the rains did not damage him to any extent. He has out around 800 acres of corn and most of it is looking fine. Mr. Jackson has several hundred head of cattle and hogs on the farm. He says pastures are good and stock of all kinds are making a splendid growth.

L. W. Pistole, wife and daughter were Maryville visitors yesterday. Mr. Pistole says crop conditions are looking fair up his way, the rains having started vegetation of every kind to growing fine. Oats have begun to look like they would make a good yield in that locality.

H. A. Lemon, northwest of Maryville shipped out a fine load of hogs to the St. Joseph market this week. Mr. Lemon was well pleased with the price.

William Woodburn, northwest of Ravenwood, shipped out his baby beeves last week. They were well finished and commanded around the top for that day. Mr. Woodburn says the crop outlook is good over that way.

J. L. Reddick and Fred Gaddis, north of Gaynor City, were transacting business in Maryville this week. They report some damage done to the corn and fields up that way by the heavy rains. Aside from that they have a great prospect for a crop.

Amos Hays, northeast of Burlington Junction says he lost around five acres of corn by the heavy rain.

Howard Bancroft, east of Clearmont, reports quite an amount of damage to the fields and corn by the late rains, some of the small corn being covered up and some washed out.

The county bridge, west of Jim Bradshaw's, and the one northwest of him were washed out by the heavy rain. These bridges are northeast of Burlington Junction.

Dick Tobin, southeast of Burlington Junction was a Maryville visitor yesterday. He says considerable damage was done to corn but thinks after a few days good growing weather it will not be so noticeable.

SENSE AND NONSENSE FOR THE FAMILY

THIS AND THAT FOR THE HOME

Hints and Helps for Farmers

by J. Ross Fleetwood County Extension Agent

Elmer Froyd's of near Bedison have torn down their old house and are building a modern farm-house in its place. Mr. Froyd and his three boys are doing the excavating and building of the foundation. They plan on being ready for the carpenters by July 1. The house when completed is to be a two-story, eight room, structure, nearly square. It is to be equipped with a modern water system, bathroom and septic tank. Electric lights are also to be installed. Mr. Froyd said he didn't know much about the inside arrangements, since the women folks had entire charge of that and were rather prone to change their minds. Mr. Froyd and the boys have some mighty nice sod corn, which Clifford and Leanard are feeding to nine baby beef calves for the baby beef show.

The Bluegrass season is just about ended with only a fair yield and much speculation as to the price to be paid for the seed. T. H. Acklin and sons of Graham, have between eight and nine hundred bushels of good seed. Emmett Scott of Maryville has around nine hundred bushels. Ross Scott has between forty and 50 bushels of the finest quality of seed seen in the county.

B. M. King of the Field Crops Department of the Missouri College of Agriculture, was in the county two days this week studying methods of stripping, curing, storing and selling. He reports a very marked tendency among farmers of the Bluegrass section to strip their own grass rather than let some one do it on shares. This is a good movement and should be encouraged. No Nodaway County farmer would think of giving one half of the crop or even more to get someone to harvest his corn, wheat, oats, or alfalfa. Why should he do it with his bluegrass?

George McNeil of Graham reports a destructive rain Wednesday morning, but S. H. Kemp stated that a much more severe rain fell at Hopkins at the same time. Mr. McNeil reported about 3 inches in two hours, while Mr. Kemp reported 5½ inches in one hour. Mr. Kemp said that many fields of corn were so badly damaged that they were being abandoned for summer seeding to alfalfa. F. C. Barber of Skidmore reports only a small rain at Skidmore with not much damage Wednesday morning.

A man once wrote his relatives in another state that it was so dry there they had to wet the kindling before they could start a fire and in a short time he wrote that it was then so wet that they had to dry their water before they could boil it. It seems as if the weather is like that somewhat. The pendulum swings from one extreme to the other.

Harry Hensley, marketing specialist with the Missouri College of Agriculture, spent Friday in the county studying marketing conditions and confering with the county agent in regard to the "Shipping Association News" a market digest, gotten out monthly to all the shipping associations in Missouri. Mr. Hensley is a brother of Glen Hensley, former county agent of Harrison County, who is now in Stanberry, taking a leave of absence from county work in an effort to regain his health.

Harry Mitchell accidently discovered a very profitable way to spend his time during the recent wet weather. He took a team down to drag some wire out of a hedge fence as a preparation for repairing. He pulled the wire out, also some of the hedge. Finding that it pulled so easily, Harry and his hand proceeded to pull the entire hedge. During a wet spell the old hedge often pulls easily and it is a comparatively simple matter to get rid of this poor excuse for a fence, thief of plant food, and harbor for insects and plant diseases.

A good many inquiries are being received in regard to culling poultry at this time of year. It is not recommended that culling for egg production be started before the middle to the last of July. At the present time those factors which serve as the basis for culling are not pronounced enough to allow distinction between a good layer and a poor layer. Furthermore, it is not recommended to cull chickens at any time which have not been on full feed for from four to six weeks previous to the culling date. If not properly fed, a hen which is really a good layer, may be "laying off laying" due to lack of food. Anyone contemplating culling should begin feeding a full feed of mash now and be ready to cull sometime about August 1.

A number of gardens in the county are rather seriously infested with plant lice this year. These little insects are sucking insects, which multiply at an almost unbelievably rapid rate. They attack most all crops, but are more serious on beans, radishes, brussel sprouts, and such crops. The first indication of their activity on a plant will be a check in its growth, wilted, drooping appearance and a tendency of the leaves to curl under at the edges. When the leaves are examined, myriads of the tiny black or green bugs will be found on the under side. They are easily controlled by spraying with nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf Forty) at the rate of one teaspoonful to each gallon of water. A little soap dissolved in the water will cause the spray to stick better to the leaves of the plants. One spraying is usually sufficient because the young are ordinarily born alive and do not hatch from eggs except in the fall and early spring.

THE HONEST CROOK.

The story is told of an engraver in the government printing shops at Washington who, at the time the first twenty-dollar yellowback gold certificates were issued, received his salary in these new bills and decided to take a short trip to New York.

When paying his hotel bill in New York he handed the clerk one of the yellowbacks, whereupon the clerk turned it over several times, then refused as politely as he could to accept it, saying that he had never seen such a bill and thought it of no value.

"Why" said the engraver. "Of course it's good. I made it myself just last week."

"That's what I thought," returned the clerk as he rang for the house detective.

The TALE of KIDDIE KATYDID

by Arthur Scott Bailey

FIREFLY'S DISCOVERY

THAT secret about Katy, and what she did, was not the only one that Kiddie hid from the field people. He had another—something about himself—that nobody ever suspected, until Freddie Firefly stumbled upon it one night.

Probably Freddie would never have learned this second secret had he not been trying to find out about the first one. Over in the meadow he had heard Kiddie Katydid shrilling his well-worn ditty, "Katy did; she did, she did!" And he had danced his way into Farmer Green's dooryard because he wanted to have a talk with Kiddie and ask him some questions about that unknown lady.

Like all others who tried to pry into the mystery, Freddie Firefly had no luck at all. For Kiddie Katydid made no reply to his inquiries. Kiddie merely smiled in a most annoying fashion and kept on repeating the refrain.

"Doesn't your voice ever get tired, singing those silly words over and over again all night long?" Freddie Firefly finally asked.

"Oh! no, indeed!" said Kiddie Katydid. "On the contrary it rests my voice to do this." And he solemnly shrilled the chorus more rapidly than ever.

"There's something queer about that cry of yours!" Freddie Firefly suddenly exclaimed. "I'm watching you closely; but I can't see that your mouth moves the least bit."

Again Kiddie Katydid smiled. He saw that Freddie Firefly was puzzled.

"Why do you keep moving your wings when you say Katy did?" Freddie Firefly asked him at last.

But Kiddie refused to answer that question—a fact which at once made Freddie suspicious. He moved nearer Kiddie Katydid and flashed his light upon him every time Kiddie repeated his odd statment about Katy. And soon Freddie Firefly grew much excited. He actually danced up and down, he was so astonished.

"I've found you out!" he cried in a loud voice. "It's no wonder your voice doesn't get tired from that song! For you don't really sing it at all! You make that queer sound by rubbing your wing covers together!"

Kiddie Katydid abruptly ceased his shrilling. He looked most uncomfortable. And it was not surprising. He had not supposed that Freddie Firefly—or anybody else—would be shrewd enough to discover that secret. It was a family secret—one that had been closely guarded by the Katydids since the beginning of time, almost. And here he had gone and let Freddie Firefly find it out!

"I'm right about that and you can't deny it!" cried Freddie Firefly boldly. "You may as well admit that what I say is true," he added.

"I certainly won't dispute you," Kiddie Katydid replied. "I have too good manners to do anything so rude as that."

"I don't care about your manners," Freddie answered. "I dare say they're good enough, although some people think it's rather rude of you to make so much noise when a good many others are trying to sleep."

"I should like to know who objects to my music?" Kiddie Katydid exclaimed hotly. "If Farmer Green has been talking to you, I should like to state that he had better be careful. Anyone who drives a clattering mowing machine around, when a lot of us are trying to get our rest in the daytime, ought not to complain about a little music on a pleasant night like this."

Burglar Alarm Needed.

A colored parson, calling upon one of his flock, found the object of his visit out in the back yard working among his hen coops. He noticed with surprise that there were no chickens.

"Why, Brudder Brown," he asked, "whah'r all yo' chickens?"

"Huh!" grunted Brother Brown without looking up, "some fool nigger let de do' open an' dey all went home."

Mrs. ?—"My husband is so good to his employes."

Interested—"Is he?"

Mrs. ?—"Yes, he came home last night all tired out, poor fellow, and I heard him murmur in his sleep, 'Rupe, I'll raise you ten!' And business so dull, too."

White and Pastel Shaded Flannel in Coats Quite Good

New York, June 19.—Unlined coats of flannel in pastel shades and in white are designed to accompany the pastel-hued jumper frocks of sports type. Grosgrain ribbon binds the edges in most instances. Models are both double-breasted and of the wrap-about type and in some cases neither buttons nor pockets are used since simplicity is the keynote of the fashion. Rose beige, yellow, soft blue green and white are the main colors chosen.

Fringe is still popularly employed as a dress and wrap trimming. The skirts of evening frocks often use fringe to give the tier effect. Winged panels which flow from the shoulders at the rear are also bordered with fringe in many instances. Wraps of evening variety are frequently weighted with two or three layers of deep silk fringe of the exact shade as the wrap. The little cape boudoir-gown which resembles the popular cape-coat of street variety also uses fringe as a cape and hem border.

Shoes of one color with appliques of another are among the season's favorites. No longer do we see cut-out effects and open work designs used on smart shoes. Instead, we find little oddly shaped pieces of leather appliqued on the shoe over vamp. Sometimes the aplique is of green or red while the shoes itself is black patent. The heel is then likely to be of green or red.

The lizard skin trimming is used on a great many models. In fact, most leather this year is oddly passed to give the crinkled effect of snake or lizard. Vamps are a trifle shorter and more rounded this year than last. Heels on smart models are invariably high, and the sports type of shoe has almost entirely disappeared. Light tan and parchment kids are by far the most popular street shoes of the season.

BOOKS

Worth-While Things For The Reader's Time

BY TOWNSEND GODSEY.

Books might well be likened to people. They are, in fact, accounts of the actions of people and just as we commend a man for his good traits so it is proper to speak well of a book that pleases us. However just as some men are less interesting than others, some books hold our attention longer than do the dull writings, and as an average output of more than two new books a day is being maintained by the American publishers those persons who read an occasional book for the pleasure of it should appreciate advice concerning late publications. That there is no need of reading dull books when so many good ones are available is sound advice.

The two books reviewed here may be procured from the rental department of the Public Library.

"SUSPENSE" by Joseph Conrad; Doubleday Page & Co., Garden City N. Y. publishers.

Here is a book with a title very much in keeping with its contents Suspense of a kind that causes one to continue reading from chapter to chapter, from part to part. Not a near-climax suspense that one sees in the serial motion picture thrillers but an uncertainty that is interesting and which gives no solution. One of the things which I found to be of interest in the books was the manner in which Conrad handled Cosmo Latham, the principal character in the story, and Napoleon. Not once during the entire novel do the two men meet, yet the Man of Elba almost dominates every situation in which young Latham figures.

One should find much of interest in the book for many reasons. The story is good so far as it is carried. The treatment of the characters is humane and especially pleasing is the author's attitude toward Napoleon, displaying that emperor's merits and shortcomings according to the views of the nobility, the peasants, in fact, painting word pictures of him as seen through the eyes of all familiar with that great name. The book is unfinished but it is not incomplete. The very ending might well be the beginning of another novel. Strange it seems that this story should end as it does yet one cannot restrain a tense feeling in the passage:

"Where is his star now?" said Cosmo, after looking down in silence for a time.

"Signore, it should be out," said Attilio with studied intonation for a time. "But who will miss it out of the sky?"

And thus the novel, one worthy of a place on your library shelves, ends.

One of the most interesting things in this book is to be found on the title page—a note explaining the origin of such the name given to this book. It states, "Among the notionable dictes of ancient Rome was the fancy that when men heard thunder on the left the gods had something of special advertisement to impart. Then did the prudent pause and lay down their affairs to study what omen Jove intended."

You may or may not like this one of Mr. Morley's offerings in which the domestic troubles of several persons are aired quite politely in the unoffending fashion of the author. Mr. Morley writes smootly and in this book he handles, in a deft style, many scenes which, if attempted by some other writers of this generation, otherwise would be difficult matters to explain. No doubt this book will continue to hold its place on the list of "best volumes" for it does have an appeal and is something of a contribution. However, in the event this book does not please you sufficiently to make you a Morley enthusiast read his "Where The Blue Begins." It is delightful.

THE QUESTION

TO BE or not to be? That is no question.
Unless, perchance, you have the indigestion—
Never to know the joy of love and life?
Never to know the thrill of conquering strife?
Never to taste the bliss of mastery
Over the things of earth, and air, and sea?
Never to feel? Never to know the Spring?
Never to laugh, never to dance or sing?
Never to suffer pain for others' sake?
Never to sleep and dream, never to wake?
No question there! Whatever man's distress
No being would he drop for nothingness!

The Selection of Vacation Clothes Presents Problem

Vacation clothes present a fascinating, though perplexing problem, for few women wil leoncede that they have enough of the right clothes for the shortest trip.

Experienced vacationers will profit by former mistakes, maybe, and buy clothes suitable to the scene of their 1926 pleasure trip. The novice may wonder how much and what kind and start out with nearly everything wrong.

Camps and summer resorts in the Ozarks of Missouri are growing more popular with Missourians each year. Entertainment may range from horse back riding and dancing to the simplest camp life and the prospective vacationer will do well to find out just what he and his friends will do for amusement.

A young woman, who has spent the past four summers at Rockaway, in southern Missouri, has suggested the following as essential:

Sports clothes—knickers and sailor-trousers or overalls.

Two or three shirts or blouses.

Low-heeled oxfords.

Cotton sox to be worn with knickers (Wool one will scratch).

Big, soft hat.

One other hat for train wear.

Bathing suit and cap.

Old, hard soled shoes or rubber shoes to be worn to beach.

Bath robe—for beach wear (terry cloth suggested).

Sweater or coat.

A big two weeks' supply of underwear, lots of silk hose and all the presentable dresses you have room to take.

Lots of handkerchiefs.

"Little Fellow" Can Invest: Rogers Outlines Four Commandments For Saving Money From A Limited Income

Following is an article on "Investments," written for this page by C. W. Rogers, chairman of the commerce department at the State Teachers College:

If you had $500 to invest just what would you do with it? The problem would be equally difficult with $250 or $100 or even $1,000. Andrew Carnegie said that the only way for a man or woman to get ahead and provide a competence for old age is to set his dollars to work for him.

Perhaps your answer is "I cannot save anything—I can barely make a living let alone saving." Listen to what James J. Hill, noted railroad magnate said about saving: "If you want to know whether you are destined to be a success or not, you can easily find out. The test is simple and infallible. Are you able to save money? If not, drop out, you will lose. You may think not, but you will lose as sure as fate, for the seed of success is not in you."

The purpose of this article is to discuss briefly some of the rules or general principles of investing. The man who has a margin of several thousand dollars is quite likely to devote considerable time and thought to the many types of investments and securities now being offered on the investment market. This is not possible to the person with a small savings. In the first place the person with only a few dollars saved must needs spend the greater portion of his time in earning a living. Furthermore, until just recently the large investment markets have been absolutely closed to the man of small means. Formerly securities were sold only in large blocks to wealthy investors. High taxes have been largely instrumental in opening these avenues to the man of small savings, and now many securities formerly available only in $1000 units are offered to the public in units as small as $100 or less.

David F. Jordan, professor of finance, New York University, in his recent text entitled, "Investments," lays down the following four commandments as the most advisable plan for the average man to adopt in investment matters. These commandments are as follows:

1. Buy life insurance. This is believed to be the surest and safest protection that has yet been devised for the public good.

2. Make regular additions to savings accounts. Such savings will provide a quick reserve against emergencies and will permit accumulations to meet other desired objects.

3. Own a home. Home ownership is a conducive to better citizenship and is itself an incentive to further effort.

4. Invest in sound securities. Before the average investor seriously considers the security field, however, he should first achieve the three prerequisites herein listed. If he has done so, he is ready to enter the investments market."

The ramainder of this article will be devoted to a few remarks relative to the above named commandments.

In taking up the first commandment as laid down by Jordan—the subject of life insurance—one is confronted by the question as to whether or not life insurance is an investment. A noted writer on finance in the 'Outlook' says, "perhaps life insurance is not an investment in the strictest sense of the word, but it protects one's family and it protects one's self in old age, and protection is a prime requirement of all investments." Another writer says "Life insurance provides more protection with less outlay than can be provided by any other means."

Statistics show that 85 per cent of all American estates consist of life insurance, but that only 3 cents per dollar is the amount that Americans spend for life insurance. A small investment but a big result.

The savings bank is an excellent place for small sums. It offers an exceptionally high degree of safety. It is directly supervised and the law requires that its deposits be invested in non-speculative securities. A savings account provides a "nest-egg," and in case of emergency it is always easy to get. When the account reaches a healthy proportion, it can be applied on the purchase of a bond. A savings account, as in the case of life insurance, may not be considered a strict investment, but it is the beginning of an investment and everything must have a beginning.

"Own a home." It is an undisputable fact that people who own their own homes are more independent than their more inprovident neighbor, and there is nothing that offers quite so large a return as independence. A home represents a cash investment upon which money can always be raised if necessary.

Real estate is not considered a good investment for the man of moderate means, outside of his home. Real estate requires especial study and looking after a great deal of worry over taxes, repairs, rents, insurance, et cetera. Why not buy real estate mortgage bonds from some reliable firm and leave the worry and details to others.

"Invest in sound securities" is the fourth and last commandment. To develop this phase of my subject at all would necessitate a much larger amount of space than has been allotted me. I shall therefore make only a few brief remarks on this most important phase of investments.

Safety first should be the slogan of the small investor. Good bonds are considered best in this respect. Outside of U. S. Government bonds, municipal, railroad, and public utility bonds are perhaps safest. They are safe enough. Industrial bonds include those of a wide group of great business organizations of the country. Due to rapid fluctuation and the large amount of risk involved, only experienced investors should venture out into this field.

Investments in stocks involve a still greater risk than bonds. It is usually considered a good policy to pass up stocks unless you are acquainted with the management of the business.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

BLUE RIBBON EDITION Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gailliard, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Prof. Husted, and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Prof. Husted, who lives like a hermit; Veronica is his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the old man's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board and their host introduces himself as Pol Gailliard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol runs over to the Husted house, and while ashore sees a man in a flat-bottomed boat cut his sloop adrift. He rows back to his boat and releases his second anchor. On his return to shore he meets Veronica in a canoe, coming from Prof. Husted's house. He escorts her home.

INSTALLMENT XII.

POL ANSWERS THE SIGNAL.

There came another sharp clatter of hoofs; a groom in whipcord, mounted on a cob, cantered past. He, too, looked up with a grin on his square red face, and made a sort of mocking salutation. Pol was partly screened by a lilac bush. He noticed the rider caught sight of him when almost past and that the grin changed suddenly to a scowl. Glancing then at the girl, Pol saw she was frowning.

"That's a fresh mick, Mr. Cadrigan's groom."

"He looked jealous when he saw me," said Pol.

"Well, he's got no license to," the girl answered and moved a little restlessly.

"I mustn't keep you from your work," he said, then asked the price of and paid for the milk and eggs.

"It's nothing but work for me," she said sullenly, "what with this pack of kids and chickens and a horse and cow."

"Well, it's healthy, anyhow," Pol said.

She gave her lustrous head a little toss. "I should worry about my health. It ain't as if we were poor—my father hauls down good money. Cadrigan gives him subcontracts. That girl that just passed is his stepdaughter. She's a wop, like me."

"Don't use that word," Pol protested.

"Why not?"

"I object to it as a student and admirer of the great D'Annunzio."

Her fact softened a little. "Say, you're funny—but I don't say but what you're right, at that. Well, I've got to get back on my job. Some cat you got. Look's like it might be half ferret." She laughed, evidently reluctant to break this pleasant intermission.

"I'll probably be back again for milk and eggs," said Pol. "I'm making a sketch of Mr. Cadrigan's house."

"You ain't afraid that somebody will do you dirt again?"

"Oh, no. That was just a fellow that needed an anchor right away, I think. Besides, I don't like the idea of being scared off."

"Well, there's some mean guys nowadays. Watch yourself, mister."

Pol said good-by and left her. He sprinkled some small change among the children, who understood this currency. Nightingale appearing loath to leave, Pol told one of them to bring her down. Fresh discussion arose over over this honor. The proud position of cat bearer to a poet being adjusted, Pol made his way back to the boat. He could feel between his shoulders the tingle of the approving looks streaming after him.

The breeze coming fresh southwesterly a little later, Pol made sail and ran out into the sound. He liked to sail, and having no motor in his sloop, there seemed more object in such promenade. Also it made his espionage appear less vigilant. It was about eleven of the morning when he beat out. Standing across the sound, he followed the Long Island shore for some distance, then anchored and went ashore for a walk on the sandy beach, keeping his eye always on the breeze that had every promise of holding until sundown.

Pol ran back with its lightening, dropping anchor in the same spot, a little below Mr. Husted's old farmhouse. He got his supper, read a little, and then, without changing from his khaki clothes, set himself on lookout for Veronica.

Shortly after dark, on a night like the one before, he saw her canoe approaching. She gave him a little flirt of the paddle, then continued on her course, and disappeared in the shadow of the big trees that flanked the cove; but as the minutes passed and there appeared no signal of light from the front window of the house, Pol decided the hermit had declined to make an exception in his favor.

Then suddenly, the light sparked out. Pol extinguished his own cabin lamp, and, leaving Nightingale in charge of deck an cockpit, locked his cabin door, rowed ashore, and landed beside the canoe.

Veronica let him in with a brief word of greeting, and Pol found himself confronted by a striking personality. It was the first time he had laid eyes upon the hermit. Instead of the wild, unkempt individual he had pictured, he discovered the solitary proprietor of Husted's Point to be a gaunt, broad-shouldered man of calm and thoughtful visage, with a square white beard neatly trimmed, thick white hair brushed back from an intellectual forehead, deep but luminous brown eyes that showed no hint either of madness or senility. He was neatly dressed in spotless linen with a low collar and black bow tie and a dark velvet house jacket. He might, in fact, have been a college professor rising from his evening's reading to receive a student who had called to discuss a thesis on his subject of instruction.

Veronica presented Pol in a brief and simple way. "Now perhaps you will believe what I say, professor. They want to frighten Mr. Gailliard away because his being here interferes with their attempts to frighten you away."

The professor smiled and patted her shoulder with a finely shaped hand. "My dear child, the sooner these garlic eaters discover that I am not to be frightened away the better." He gave a sniff and glanced at Pol with a twinkle at the corner of his eyes. "My apologies, Mr. Gailliard. I caught it just too late."

Pol laughed. He had been thoughtless when eating that bologna. "Glad you don't think I may be one of your persecutors, sir."

Mr. Husted raised his eyebrows. "Persecutors? Has Miss Cadrigan told you?"

Veronica shot a look of quick suspicion at Pol, who said: "Please don't discredit my acumen. I am wider awake at night. Miss Cadrigan's last words gave me the cue. Besides, I know that low gregarious natures abhor a hermit, just as all nature abhors a vacuum, and for a similar reason—because it covets its space."

The professor gave him a still keener look. "And you are a poet, sir?"

"Only a soi-disant one, Prof. Husted."

"Then I fear you have still some road to travel, Mr. Gailliard."

The professor took Veronica paternally by the arm and led the way into a room to delight the heart of the amateur of fine old simple things. Though faded, Pol discovered Veronica's touch in the flowers, washed windows, and clean curtains and hangings. One of these big old fashioned lamps that, like a pet, must be watched, if it is not to boil over in black soot, threw out a soft, pervasive light that was reflected from the patine of old furniture. Pol had thought this hermit to be living like a hairy troglodyte, and now discovered that instead he was housed in a fashion that is our ideal for the last cry in modern elegance—which is that of the home rather than the glittering hotel. He wondered why Veronica should so have occupied herself in his well-being. Pol was suddenly aware of his clean but dilapidated khaki shirt and breeches and brown sneakers. He murmured a word of apology for his appearance.

Veronica made an appeal. "You must have somebody here with you, professor," she insisted, and looked at Pol. "Don't you think so, Mr. Gailliard?"

"I could give a better opinion if I knew more of the situation," Pol said. "I do not see why Prof. Husted should have enemies."

"There's a conspiracy to frighten him away," said Veronica.

THINGS TO WATCH IN FEEDING A BABY

Care Should Be Used in Giving a Correct Amount of Wholesome Food, Otherwise Digestive Troubles Are Sure to Follow.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Young mothers have a lot to learn. Between babies every mother forgets a few things, certainly. Then, too, knowledge about curing babies and keeping them well is progressing all the time. So, you see, every mother has a lot to learn.

I'd rather have the satisfaction of helping to lighten the burdens of mothers and to make life easier for little children than to be Emperor of the world. Wouldn't you?

Most of the troubles of babies have to do with their digestive organs. Their sensitive insides can get out of order without half trying. Just when you think a baby is 100 per cent well he suddenly begins to vomit and act up generally.

There are so many causes for vomiting in babies that it isn't easy to find out just what is wrong. This is a common symptom. Almost every disease dren from the habit of vomiting. Like that baby can get begins with vomiting.

But you need not worry your head off just because the baby vomits. It is not a sign of real disease by any means. Nursing babies are very likely to vomit every once in a while. Usually it is of no importance, except to indicate overfeeding.

Overfilling the stomach of an infant produces symptoms such as you have when you crowd your stomach. The organ rebels and you are inclined to empty it. If the child's feeding has been too rapid and the stomach has been filled to overfolwing vomiting is the natural means of relief. The remedy is simple—reduce the quantity of food given at each meal.

Rapid feeding is just as bad for babies as it is for grownups. The fast swallowing causes air to be taken in with the milk. The stomach fills up with gas or air. Of course, if the stomach becomes inflammed there may be vomiting of a more serious type. In that event the expelled material may not be the unchaaged milk alone, but it may be milk mixed with slime and traces of blood, perhaps.

There may be present a form of indigestion which has vomiting as one of its symptoms. Then there is sourness of the vomited material.

When vomiting is frequent without apparent cause it is important to find out what is wrong. The doctor will have the urine tested to make sure the kidneys are in good condition. Kidney trouble is one of the possible causes of this symptom.

The mother should give attention to the ailment, because a good many other habits, it is difficult to overcome.

Sore throat, fever, the beginning of the little diseases children have—all these have vomiting among the possible symptoms. Bad milk and tainted food of every sort are bad for baby and may cause vomiting.

In every case of vomiting—whether occassional or habitual—you should carefully see what is wrong in order that the cause may be found and removed.

Car Trading Is Rapidly Taking Place of 'Hoss Swapping' Here

Times may change and modes of living improve but human nature remains much the same as it always has been. There was a time, and that not so long ago either, when 'horse trading' was a more or less common recreation, with or without profit to those who indulged in it, as the case might be.

Horses are far from being extinct and will probably always be very useful servants of mankind, but the automobile has rapidly replaced horses in many ways.

What can be more natural, then, than that trading cars should replace 'hoss swapping' in the favor of many owners of autos.

A survey of the records of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce prove this to be true for during the four and one half months since the nineteen twenty-six state auto licenses went on sale more than 100 application for transfers of license plates from one car to another have been received. Probably one-third of that number were from an old car to a new one, but the remaining two-thirds were from one used car to another more or less used car. Not content with trading once some individuals traded two or three times. As a $2 fee is charged for each transfer, considerable revenue for the state is derived in this way. The number of people who have had the same license plates on at least two cars during the current year is about one-tenth of the total number of people who have purchaser new or used cars for the first time this year, 1,047 applications for certificates of ownership having been received up to date.

Talk About Slow Races, What Do You Think of This?

Some folks say, "there is nothing new under the sun," and yet every once in a while a new idea does appear. The local Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of the following letter from the Miami, Okla., Chamber of Commerce, which is self-explanatory:

"You have been asked, no doubt, to participate in various celebrations for publicity's sake. We are asking you to join in Miami's celebration July 2-4 and in so doing your organization has a chance of winning a very neat prize of $1,000.

"One feature of our annual celebration is the International Terrapin Derby with a $1,000 stake, and some added money. We are inviting Chambers of Commerce from all sections of the country to enter a terrapin in the race and compete for the prize. $1,000 for your organization will probably relieve your budget and the gambler's chance is worth trying for."

Very truly yours,
H. E. RYKER, Secretary.

A circular accompanying the letter states that entries must be a "dry land terrapin, any size, age or color. The committee will provide, free of charge terrapins for those who do not have their own."

OUR NATIVE TOWN.

We like to see and hear a man who is proud of his native town. He is an indispensable citizen, although he may be as poor as a church mouse; but his name should be written in large letters at the entrance gate of his town as an honor to his memory. We have such with us and they are worth more to the progress of our town than their weight in gold. They know every point of interest and of advantage for miles around; and any stranger falling into their hands will soon learn everything that adds to the horror of our town and will be most favorably impressed. Such persons overlook with true patriotism all shortcomings and magnify with honest citizenship every advantage. Ye grumblers, meditate.—Boonville Missourian.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 19.—Grains slumped in all positions on the close in the Chicago Board of Trade and quotations were well below Friday's final figures. The wheat dip was due to the fact that Southwestern rains seem to have no effect on the crop movement and the other pit reacted sympathetically.

Wheat was nervous throughout the day in a typical weather market. Toward the close the range became very choppy and losses of as much as 2¾ cents, little of which was recovered, were registered. Prices were sharply lower in all positions. There was little done in the local cash market but Kansas City was about a cent lower while the Northwestern markets also closed lower after dull sessions.

The trend in corn was unchanged today and further fractional losses were recorded. Cash prices were unchanged.

Oats also closed fractionally lower for all deliveries in sympathy with the break in wheat.

Selling by local packers exerted pressure on provisions and they closed lower than yesterday.

Weather Last Week Favorable to Crops

Generous Rains Help North Part Of State—Wheat Harvest To Start Soon In Southern Half.

Warm and generally favorable weather prevailed in Missouri during the week ending Tuesday morning, according to the weekly weather and crop bulletin issued by George Reeder, meteorologist at Columbia for the United States Department of Agriculture.

"Rather high temperatures obtained on two or three days, especially on the 12th, when they were in the high nineties, but there was no harm done," the report says, continuing:

"Timely, and generous to heavy rains fell on the 13th and 14th, and they were particularly satisfying over the northern half of the State and south of the Missouri River and north of the Ozarks. Along the Missouri River and along the southern border and in the southeast part of the State the amounts were helpful but more rain is needed in those sections. It was the wettest week so far this season, but the seasonal rainfall to date is still subnormal.

"Wheat has been benefitted by the rains. This is particularly true for the western border counties from Platte to the northern border. In the southern half and in the lower lands of the central and northern sections the general condition is fair to good. Harvest will begin in Greene County and some other southern localities about the 25th; this is a week or more later than usual. Oats are short but improved by rains.

"Generally the corn crop so far is quite satisfactory. It is small but is making fine growth and has good color, with mostly clean and well cultivated fields. Stages of growth vary between two inches to knee high. The southeast cotton also is doing well; some localities need rain.

"Considerable alfalfa has been saved; much is ready for cutting. All grasses and truck crops have been much benefitted by the rains.

"The main fruits and berries continue promising in most sections. The commercial strawberry crop is practically all harvested. The last week was favorable."

"LAME DUCK" BILL TO WAIT

WON'T SUBMIT PROPOSAL TO STATES THIS YEAR.

HOUSE DELAYS ACTION

Measure Provides That President and Congress Take Over Duties Early in January.

Washington, June 19.—The question of elimination of "lame duck" congresses will not be submitted to the legislatures of the forty-eight states for approval this year.

The House will not act on the proposed constitutional amendment this session. This makes the third consecutive session in which the Senate has approved the proposal and the House has pigeonholed it.

But Representative White, Republican, Kansas, chairman of the House committee on election of President and vice-president, announced that he would press for House approval of the plan early next session.

The plan provides that the President and members of congress take over their positions early in January, two months after they are elected. At present the President is inaugurated in March, and the congressmen do not actually attend a session until the December session, thirteen months after their election.

The plan as reported favorably by White's committee but not acted upon by the House provides that the newly elected Congress count the electoral votes for President, and in case a majority is not cast, the new House will choose the President and the Senate will choose the vice-president.

One provision for the event of the death of the President-elect before he assumed office, specifies that the vice-president-elect would become President.

Congress is also given power to provide in case both the president-elect and the vice-president-elect die, and in case neither a President or vice-president has been elected by the time set for inauguration.

If the House passes the joint resolution containing the amendment at the next session it will go to conference to adjust differences with the bill passed by the Senate. But if action is again delayed the whole process of passing both houses must be attempted again.

THREE GREAT FIRMS MERGE

UTILITIES CONSOLIDATON INVOLVES BILLION DOLLARS.

ELECTRICAL CONCERNS

Mid West Utilities Co., North American Co., And North American Power And Light Combine.

Chicago, June 19.—Combination of three great utilities companies, with a total capitalization of more than a billion dollars, under an operating agreement which will unite the vast power lines over the entire Middle West, became known today.

The corporations are the Mid West Utilities Co., a Samuel Insull property, the North American Co., with operating ramifications in the East and Middle West, and the North American Power and Light Co., controlled by the Studebaker-McKinley interests.

The operating concerns, controlled by these three corporations, cover the huge territory extending from Virginia and Kentucky to Nebraska, Michigan and Minnesota and extending as far Southwest as Oklahoma.

The 200-million-dollar North American Power Light Co. is to be reorganized, it is said, with subsequent joint ownership of common stock by the Mid West Utilities and the North American Co., of which Clemant Studebaker is president.

No spectacular changes will result fro mthe consolidation, it was said, although some new financial details which have not been made public are planned.

and supervision of social life) from which persons can be admitted as students of the College."

This is the regulation which was rescinded:

"In view of the fact that many graduates of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College will teach in the Public High Schools of the State, where secret Sororities and secret Fraternities are not wanted, and in view of the fact that the existence of these organizations in the High Schools of the State have been found to be detrimental to the best interests of the school and the members of such secret organizations, now therefore, be it resolved that it is the sense of the Board of Regents of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College that they be not encouraged or permitted in this institution. This resolution shall not apply to non-secret, honorary scholarship societies organized in connection with institutions similar to the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, if organized and governed by regulations approved by the Faculty and Administration."

Overland Six sales break all records

Retail deliveries during the month of May were the greatest in the history of the Overland Six. And now, in the first days of June, sales are again breaking records and forging ahead with increased rapidity.

Here is a car of tremendous power . . . a car that will give you the thrilling performance of over 55 miles an hour, whenever you want it.

That will pick up in high gear from 5 to 40 miles an hour in 21 seconds.

It is the first closed car that ever took the famous Sierra Grade, at San Jose, California, on high.

This is average performance of the Overland Six . . . in the hands of average owners . . . the kind you can expect when you drive this car.

Full 40-brake horsepower is delivered in a straight line from its low swung engine through to the rear-axle shaft.

This big sturdy Six will out-pull, out-run and out-perform anything else of its size, or weight, or price-class.

It is a car of exceptional comfort. The big, broad doors are 32½ inches wide. You can get in or out with the utmost ease.

Seats are wide, luxuriously comfortable. There is more cubic feet of space inside than in any car of this price . . . with plenty of room for five full-size passengers. Room to stretch your legs without feeling cramped or crowded.

Nothing has been spared to make this car a positive comfort-revelation. Owners accustomed to more expensive cars tell us this is true.

It is a strikingly beautiful car.

Frankly, we took the 18 best cars of America and Europe and combined their salient features in this new-type Overland Six.

In justice to yourself, see this car.
